MY WORK EXPERIENCE BLOG

BY KAREN JONES

This is my third week of work experience, and I have another three weeks to go. It hasn't been easy, but I'm so glad I decided to do it. I've already learnt a lot about banking, but it's so much more than that – I've travelled half way across the world, made friends for life, improved my personal skills and self-confidence and had my first taste of independence!

I graduated from university last year with a degree in Maths. I really didn't know what I wanted to do after that, so I needed some time to think about my future career. When I first saw the advert for this project, I didn't think it was for me. London, UK, is a long way away from Hong Kong, where I've lived my whole life. How would I manage without my family and friends? I talked about it with my parents, and in the end I decided to apply. To my surprise, I got in – and by then it was too late to change my mind!

I'm not earning much, of course, because it isn't a real job. The project pays for my expenses and gives me some pocket money too. I only had to pay for the airfare, so really it's quite a good deal. My parents are coming out to see me when I finish and we're going to spend a week sightseeing. I'm looking forward to that because I love seeing new places and meeting new people.

This has been a great adventure for me, and I've discovered a lot about myself – including the fact that banking isn't really the profession for me! I have, however, found out what I really love – and that's travelling! So I think that's where my career lies.
