Bear Grylls loves to be out in the wild

WILD BEAR

PREPARES TO ATTACK AGAIN!

Bear's new series is going to be quite different from his others. For a start, he isn't going to be alone in the wild. In fact, he's going to take 20 people to New Zealand's South Island. These people are going to compete in pairs and the winning pair is going to win a prize of $500,000! The contestants are going to have to make fires and a shelter, go through obstacles, keep safe and dry at night, and, of course, find food. That isn't going to be easy. People who watch Bear in action know that in the wild he has to eat some very unusual things to survive – snakes, scorpions and insects of all types.

Bear chose New Zealand's South Island because of its forests, mountains and rivers. The weather can be quite stormy and extreme, too. So, all in all, for the contestants it's going to be a difficult test, both physically and emotionally.

Bear Grylls never stops. Last year, he wrote another book, A Survival Guide for Life. He also started his very own Bear Grylls Survival Academy. And soon he's going to be back on TV with a new series, Get Out Alive with Bear Grylls.

And Bear? Is he going to watch them from a comfortable TV studio? No way! He's going to travel with them and show them how to survive in extreme conditions. And he's also going to be the one who decides which pair should win the prize. He wants to see teamwork and determination. Above all, he wants to see how ordinary people can become heroes. So, what does Bear do when he isn't making TV shows in the wild? Well, he loves spending time with his wife and three sons. He also runs and does yoga – he does exercise for about 60 minutes a day, six days a week. Doing yoga helps his back – he broke it in three places when he jumped from a plane and his parachute didn't work. And what about cooking? Because Bear is famous for eating wild animals and insects, his friends don't go to his house for dinner when they know that he's cooking!
