1. Tell us what we can do:

In the morning	In the afternoon	In the evening	At night

Wake up
Go to sleep
Study at school
Have breakfast

Have lunch at school
Have dinner
Have supper
Go to sports school

Go to music school
Play videogames
Play ball games with friends
Hang out with friends

2. Decide which part of the day the speaker tells us about.

Anna. I woke up early today, even before the sunrise. After breakfast, fried eggs and lavender coffee, I decided to take my camera and walk around the empty streets, taking photos of the awakening city. It appeared it has just rained, and there are puddles everywhere and the leaves are bright green and sparkling. It smells wonderfully. Soon, I find myself standing in front of my favourite café. Luckily, it's already opened. I totally love waking up so early and wandering around the city!

Part of Day:

Podrick. My friend Tom and I decided to go camping together as soon as the summer comes. We spent a month preparing, buying food and necessities. Now we are sitting somewhere in the forest near the river (I haven't the slightest idea where), the fire is burning bright and there are mosquitoes everywhere. The only source of light is the Moon. The forest is dark and quiet, with only the sounds of water splashing to my left.

Part of Day:

Marina. It's just after working hours, so the trading centre is overly busy and agitated. I'm not sure I can even buy what I need! Everybody seems to be shopping for Christmas. There are decorations everywhere, and the music coming from the speakers is merry. I like it here, but I have to make sure I can finish before 9 p.m., because it will be hard to catch a bus after that.

Part of Day:

John. Finally, I am going home. The lessons are over, and I'm on the street leading to the park. My house is just behind it. The weather is nice. The Sun is high, and it's hot, not a cloud on the sky. Maybe I'll drop by Pat's for dinner – he promised to cook some pancakes. There's nothing I have to do before the evening, anyway.
