Stress and Linking in Phrasal Verbs

A phrasal verb, or two-word verb, uses a verb + preposition together to create a different meaning from the verb alone.

- In most phrasal verbs, both words are stressed.
- If there is an object pronoun (such as it), it is not stressed.
- The words in the phrase are linked together without a break.

Holly: (shouting loudly) There´s a mouse in the _____.

Howard: Ow! Not so loud! Calm down! Please stop shouting and sit_____.

Holly: (sitting down) I found a mouse!

Howard: A mouse?

Holly: Yes! I was _____down on the couch and I heard a _____.

Howard: It was probably something outside. Or maybe the shower. I was taking a _____.

Holly: No, I saw the mouse! It was a little brown mouse, and it was running_____.

Howard: Where is it _____?

Holly: It´s under the couch

Howard: Well, let´s get it_____!

Holly: How?

Howard: (shouting) Move the couch around. Turn it upside down. We have to get it out somehow. We can´t have a mouse in the house. We have company coming from out of town. They´ll be here in an _____!

Holly: Calm down, Howard! Please stop shouting and sit down! It´s just a little brown mouse.
