Dear Mr. Ko,

Hi, I am Lydia Young from Trinity Elementary School. I write articles for my school newspaper, and I am planning to interview people with different jobs. I did a survey and asked the students which jobs they are mostly interested in, and city mayor made the top 10 ranking list. I know you are busy taking care of the city, but can you spend 30 minutes for an interview at City Hall? If not, I can send you an email with questions, and you can just answer them and send them back to me. I hope to hear from you soon.

Sincerely,
Lydia

Read the text. Then answer questions 6 to 8.

Who are community helpers? They are people who live and work in a community. They have different jobs to help us and provide a better environment. For example, doctors, nurses, and paramedics help patients get better. Police officers and firefighters rescue people in dangerous situations, and keep the community safe. Utility workers, plumbers, and sanitation workers keep the community clean and running smoothly. Kindergarten teachers, school teachers, and professors educate their students for the future. Volunteer workers also help the community. They do not get paid for their hard work, but they always search for people in need and help them in many different ways. Look around and find more community helpers on your own!

Read the story about Joshua and Jack. Then answer questions 9 to 12.

Joshua wanted to play basketball with Jack on Saturday afternoon. He called Jack. "Hi, Jack. This is Joshua. Do you want to play basketball with me now?" "I'm sorry, but I can't. I'm at the Riverdale Community Center," Jack replied. Joshua became curious and asked, "What are you doing there?" "I'm helping my mom raise money for children in the hospital. I'm selling cookies," Jack explained. "That sounds interesting," Joshua replied. "Why don't you sell cookies with me?" asked Jack. "We are going to visit the children at the hospital later, and play with them, too." Joshua thought it was a good idea and said, "OK. I will be right there."

Later that day, Joshua and Jack sold all the cookies, and the fundraiser was successful. "So how was your first time volunteering?" Jack asked. "It was so fun," Joshua answered. "I didn't know I could do something to help others." "Wait until you meet the children at the hospital," said Jack. "They may be physically weaker than us, but it's so much fun playing with them."

Joshua and Jack visited the hospital with the other volunteers after the fundraiser. They did face painting and watched a magic show with the children at the hospital. On the way home, Joshua thought to himself, "Today has been the best day ever! I never knew helping others could be this much fun!"
