

3-DAY LONDON ITINERARY

If you're visiting Europe and would like to stop over in London, but only have a few days to spare, you need not worry, as with our three-day itinerary, that includes the city's top attractions, you'll be able to make the most of your stay.

Day 1

The first day in London begins bright and early, before 10 am. Take the Tube to Marble Arch and explore the popular Hyde Park. We recommend going for a stroll through the park heading south to Wellington Arch. Walking through the adjacent woodland, Green Park, you will get to the Buckingham Palace, where you will have to wait patiently until 11:30 am to witness the famous ceremony of the Changing the Guard. Then, head towards the River Thames, where you will spot the city's main symbols; Big Ben and Westminster Palace. Crossing Westminster Bridge, you'll arrive at the London Eye, where you can enjoy the best views of the city. Before going up, you can stop for a quick bite to eat nearby.

Day 2

We shall begin the day at the Tower of London. Since the visit will take you most of the morning, we recommend getting there as early as possible. After exploring the Tower, you'll have to cross the Tower Bridge to get to the south bank of the River Thames. Then, take the underground to Camden Town and discover one of London's most striking and authentic neighbourhoods. Camden Town is an area with plenty of shops and stalls, where you'll also find international street food stands. Take the tube to Goodge Street and you'll get to the British Museum, one of the world's most famous museums.

Day 3

The last day in the UK's leading city starts at 10 am with a visit to St. Paul's Cathedral, located close to St. Paul's tube station, where you can visit the crypt and climb the dome. Head back to the tube station and get to Trafalgar Square, one of London's most distinguished squares. After wandering around and taking a few photos, head to the National Gallery, one of the UK's most important and well-known museums that houses a collection of over 2,300 paintings.
