

Exercise 9

Read the information. Then read the conclusions. Would the conclusions receive higher band scores? Choose Yes or No.

Remember: conclusions need to be clear and should not be repetitive. They need to paraphrase the main ideas in the essay to achieve a higher band.

1. In conclusion, young people's use of the internet, from chatting on social media to playing interactive games, has changed young people's cultural identity, and they no longer feel the same about themselves and others.
  - Yes
  - No

2. In summary, young people's use of the internet has fundamentally changed how they communicate and identify with both the people immediately around them and those from other places .
  - Yes
  - No

3. Overall, the real world of family, parents, the mass media and language are more important in constructing a young person's cultural identity than the virtual world.
  - Yes
  - No

4. All in all, a young person's native language, their immediate family, education and media outlets such as newspapers have a greater influence on what they identify with culturally in comparison to their online activity and profile.
  - Yes
  - No