The Emperor is seen coming out of the dressing room almost naked and walking through the hall towards the balcony.

The courtiers show great surprise to see the Emperor having clothes on his body. But no one says anything because they have been told that only wise men will be able to see the Emperor's new clothes, and the fools and the people who are unfit for their post will not see them.

Loud cheers are heard from the crowd standing on the road outside. When the Emperor reaches the balcony, cheers stop all of a sudden and there is pindrop silence. Then the voice of a little child is heard crying out with laughter, "Look, look Daddy, the Emperor has no clothes on at all. Has the king become very poor? Doesn't he have money to buy clothes?"

a) “The Emperor has no clothes on at all”. Who said this ?

What does the world call a man who turned a yellow flower into red; who made the seed of plums disappear; who caused desert cactus to grow a thousand times faster; who made blackberry white; and who grew 500 different kinds of cherries on one tree? Was he a master gardener, a skilled plant grower, a talented and patient breeder, or a miracle working magician?

The man responsible for controlling nature in these and countless other ways has been awarded many titles, but essentially he was a simple, hard working scientist named Luther Burbank.

Though Luther Burbank is no more, the products of his genius continue to play a part in the day-to-day lives of people throughout the world. His influence prevails in the scientific community among those who work in the fields of agriculture, horticulture, foresting and livestock.

How do you say Luther Burbank’s genius is useful for the life of common man and other fields?

My grandmothers were strong.
They followed ploughs and bent to toil.
They moved through fields sowing seed.
They touched earth and grain grew.
They were full of sturdiness and singing.
My grandmothers were strong.

My grand mothers were full of memories.
Smelling of soap and onions and wet clay.
With veins rolling roughly over quick hands
They have many clean words to say.
My grandmothers were strong.
Why am I not as they ?

How do you say that the poet's grandmothers were very strong?
