

Relative pronouns

We use relative pronouns in relative clauses.

We use relative clauses to give more information about something, without having to start a new sentence.

That man over there is called Bill Gates. He started Microsoft. →

That man over there, who's called Bill Gates, started Microsoft.

Use	Example
who for people	What's the name of the man who created the Internet?
which for things and animals	The experiment which worked was the last one.
where for places	This is the town where Albert Einstein was born.
whose to show possession	That's the man whose sister discovered a new planet.

Watch out!

- We can use who for animals when we give them a personality.
✓ Our dog, who's called Benji, is eight years old.
- When there is a relative pronoun, remember not to repeat the subject/object.
✗ What's the name of the man who he created the World Wide Web?
✗ This is the experiment which I'm doing it at the moment.

Non-defining relative clauses

Non-defining relative clauses give extra information. The sentence makes sense without the relative clause.

That man over there, who is called Bill Gates, started Microsoft.

If we remove the relative clause, the sentence still makes sense:

That man over there started Microsoft.

To give extra information	This program, which is totally free, protects your computer against viruses.	We use commas with non-defining relative clauses. ✓ Carl, whose sister is famous, is a friend of mine.

Defining relative clauses

Defining relative clauses give very important information. If we remove a defining relative clause, the sentence doesn't make sense.

Imagine that there are lots of people in a room. Only one of them is wearing a blue shirt.

The person who is wearing the blue shirt started Microsoft.

If we remove the relative clause, we won't know which person it is.

✗ The person started Microsoft.

Use	Example	Helpful hints
To define who or what we are talking about	This is the TV which works. This is the TV which doesn't work.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • We don't use commas with defining relative clauses. • We can use that instead of who and which. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ✓ Did you see the programme about the woman who invented Tippex? ✓ Did you see the programme about the woman that invented Tippex?

Actuaries

Did you know that there are people (1) are paid to predict the future? They're called 'actuaries'. I'd never heard of actuaries until my friend Greg, (2) mother is an actuary, told me about them. It's a job (3) sounds quite interesting.

Actuaries usually work for companies, like insurance companies, (4) deal with the chances of things happening in the future. Actuaries have to decide how probable it is that something will happen. For example, it's more probable that buildings will be flooded in places (5) it rains a lot. Greg's mum, (6) has been an actuary for about five years, is involved with car insurance. She works in an office (7) they decide how much car insurance people should pay. It's more probable that a car (8) is new is safer and more reliable than a very old car, so people (9) cars are new pay less insurance. If there are drivers (10) she thinks will probably have more accidents, she makes them pay more insurance!
