Studying Aboard

Hi, Mom and Dad,
How are you all? I miss you all a lot. It's the longest I've ever been away from home!

Life here is very different from Monterrey. But studying here will be a great experience for me, and so far I'm enjoying it very much. The food in the university dining hall is OK, but it doesn't have much flavor. I miss mom's cooking. On the weekend, I'm going to London, so I'll have lunch in a Mexican restaurant. There's lots of spicy Indian food here, but it's not the same.

Oxford University is very impressive, and it is one of the oldest in Europe. It started in 1254. I'm having a little trouble, not with the classes, but with understanding what the professors are saying. I studied American English in Mexico, and I'm not used to the British accent yet.

The town of Oxford is charming and has a pleasant atmosphere. The countryside is really beautiful and green—so different from Monterrey. The trouble is the weather—it's so changeable: it'll be cloudy in the morning, the sun will come out around midday, and maybe it'll rain in the afternoon.

My room is small but it's comfortable and warm. My roommate, Igor, is from Russia, so we speak English all the time. We're planning to travel together during the holidays. We'll probably go to Wales or maybe to Scotland. I'm looking forward to that.

Love, Fernando
