HOW COFFEE IS MADE

Here is a short description of the process. Coffee trees produce a fruit – a coffee cherry. When cherries are ripe, they are picked by hand or machine harvested. The coffee beans are taken from inside the cherries. Then, they are washed and sorted. The final step is roasting. During this process green coffee beans become bigger and change in terms of colour, taste and smell. The beans may be roasted to different levels: light-roasted, medium-roasted or dark-roasted. Then the coffee is packaged and shipped to different places, and sold in shops or restaurants.

LIVEWORKSHEETS

1 ☐ A fruit of coffee tree is a coffee cherry.

2 ☐ Coffee beans are clean and don't need washing.

3 ☐ Roasting changes the color, taste and smell of coffee beans.

4 ☐ There is only one level of roasting the coffee beans.

THE SMARTPHONE STORY

A smartphone is a pocket-sized touchscreen computer and phone. It connects to the Internet and allows you to use different applications (apps). Many people say that a smartphone is like a second brain in your pocket.

The term "smartphone" was first used in 1999 when these devices became popular in Japan. Other companies, like Apple and Microsoft, started to explore how to enter this market. In 2007, Steve Jobs from Apple presented the first iPhone. He said his iPhone was "a magical product". One of the main differences between the iPhone and other smartphones was the absence of keyboard. The iPhone also had a user-friendly operating system (iOS).

Android, created by Google, arrived a couple of months later. By the end of 2008, smartphones running on Android entered the market.

In just a couple of years, smartphones really changed the way people work and communicate. Smartphones in a modern world that can be used instead of a home phone, digital camera, TV or computer. We still call this device a phone, but use it mostly for texting.

LIVEWORKSHEETS

1 ☐ Smartphone does not allow you to use applications.

2 ☐ Smartphones first became popular in the USA.

3 ☐ The iPhone operating system is called Android.

4 ☐ Now many people use home phones instead of smartphones.
