CONDITIONAL SENTENCES (TYPE 1+2) (VERSION A)

1. I know very little about physics, so I'm afraid of the test.
   → If
2. If the weather isn't too bad tomorrow, we can play golf.
   → Unless
3. She has to pay in cash because she doesn't have a credit card.
   → She would
4. Visit the exhibition and you will learn a lot about American history.
   → If
5. I think you should invite Jack to the party.
   → If I
6. Cook our dinner and I will do the washing up.
   → If you
7. The weather may get better and the ferry can leave on time.
   → If
8. My feet hurt and I can't play football.
   → Unless
9. Unless you have your parents' permission, you can't join our trip.
   → If
10. Be on time, or you'll miss the train.
    → Unless

LIVEWORKSHEETS

CONDITIONAL SENTENCES (TYPE 1+2+3) (VERSION B)

1. Eating a lot of hamburgers will make you fat.
   → If
2. We can't go skiing because there isn't enough snow.
   → We
3. Study a little every day and you will pass the exam next week.
   → You will
4. Mark may go to the club, and we will meet him.
   → If Mark
5. I don't have much money, so I can't give some to the charity.
   → If I
6. Put on your pullover, or else you'll catch a cold.
   → Unless you
7. You did not cancel the flight 3 weeks before deadline, so you couldn't get your money back.
   → If you
8. If I don't see Joe this morning, I'll phone him tonight.
   → Unless
9. Maryam can't stay longer in Vietnam because she doesn't have time.
   → If
10. Get up early, or you'll miss the school bus.
    → Unless

LIVEWORKSHEETS