Markets and competitors

A Companies and markets

You can talk about the people or organizations who buy particular goods or services as the market for them, as in the 'car market', 'the market for financial services', etc. Buyers and sellers of particular goods or services in a place, or those that might buy them, form a market.

If a company:

enters		a market	it starts selling there for the first time.
penetrates
abandons			it stops selling there.
gets out of
leaves			it is the most important company selling there.
dominates
corners			it is the only company selling there.
monopolizes
drives another company out of			it makes the other company leave the market, perhaps because it can no longer compete.

C Competitors and competition

Companies or products in the same market are competitors or rivals. Competitors compete with each other to sell more, be more successful, etc.

The most important companies in a particular market are often referred to as key players.

Competition describes the activity of trying to sell more and be more successful. When competition is strong, you can say that it is intense, stiff, fierce or tough. If not, it may be described as low-key.

The competition refers to all the products, businesses, etc. competing in a particular situation, seen as a group.

20.1 Use the correct form of the words in brackets to complete the sentences.

- 1 European films do not export well: European movies barely ..... (abandon/corner/penetrate) the US market.
- 2 In the 1970s, Kodak ..... (corner/enter/leave) the instant photography market, until then ..... (abandon/dominate/penetrate) by Polaroid.

- 4 In the 1940s, MGM ..... (abandon/get out of/monopolize) the market on film musicals. But by the late 1950s, Warner Bros had also started buying film rights to musicals.

20.2 Replace the underlined expressions with expressions from B opposite. You may need to add a verb in the correct form.

I'm Kalil and I'm marketing manager for CrazyCola in a country called Newmarket. In this market, we (1) sell more than any other cola. In fact, we (2) have 55 per cent of the market. (3) Sales are increasing at seven to eight per cent per year. There are two main (4) groups of users: those who drink it in cafés, bars and restaurants, and those who buy it to drink at home. Of course, many users belong to both groups, but this is our (5) way of dividing our consumers.

20.3 Read this description of a language training market. Answer the questions.

In Paris, 500 organizations offer language training to companies. However, 90 per cent of sales are made by the top five language training organizations. The market is not growing in size overall. Organization A has 35 per cent of the market, and faces stiff competition from B, which has about 25 per cent of the market, and from C, D and E, who each have 10 per cent, but who are trying to grow by charging less for their courses.

- 1 How many competitors are there in this market?
- 2 Is competition in the market strong?
- 3 Who is the market leader?
- 4 Who are the two key players?
- 5 Who mainly makes up the competition, from the market leader's point of view?
- 6 If one competitor increases its market share, can the others keep their market share at the same level?

21 Marketing and market orientation

A Marketing

Marketing is the process of planning, designing, pricing, promoting and distributing ideas, goods and services, in order to satisfy customer needs, so as to make a profit.

Companies point out how the special characteristics or features of their products and services possess particular benefits that satisfy the needs of the people who buy them.

Non-profit organizations have other, social, goals, such as persuading people not to smoke, or to give money to people in poor countries, but these organizations also use the techniques of marketing.

In some places, even organizations such as government departments are starting to talk about, or at least think about their activities in terms of the marketing concept.

B The four Ps

The four Ps are

product: deciding what to sell

price: deciding what prices to charge

place: deciding how it will be distributed and where people will buy it promotion: deciding how the product will be supported with advertising, special activities, etc.

A fifth P which is sometimes added is packaging: all the materials used to protect and present a product before it is sold.

The four Ps are a useful summary of the marketing mix, the activities that you have to combine successfully in order to sell. The next four units look at these activities in detail.

To market a product is to make a plan based on this combination and put it into action. A marketer or marketeer is someone who works in this area.

(Marketer can also be used to describe an organization that sells particular goods or services.)

Promotion

C Market orientation

Marketers often talk about market orientation: the fact that everything they do is designed to meet the needs of the market. They may describe themselves as market-driven, market-led or market-oriented.

21.1 Look at A and B opposite. Read the article and answer the questions.

Most people and many managers do not understand the role of marketing in modern business.

Marketing is two things. First, it is a strategy and set of techniques to sell an organization's products or services. This involves choosing target customers and designing a persuasive marketing mix to get them to buy. The mix may include a range of brands, tempting prices, convenient sales outlets and a battery of advertising and promotions. This concept of marketing as selling and persuasion is by far the most popular idea among both managers and the public.

The second, and by far more important concept of marketing, focuses on improving the reality of what is on offer. It is based on understanding customers' needs and developing new solutions which are better than those currently available. Doing this is not a marketing department problem, but one which involves the whole organization.

For example, for Rover to beat Mercedes for the consumer's choice involves engineering new models, developing lean manufacturing processes, and restructuring its dealer network.

Creating company-wide focus on the customer requires the continual acquisition of new skills and technology. Marketing is rarely effective as a business function. As the chief executive of Hewlett Packard put it: 'Marketing is too important to leave to the marketing department.' Such companies understand that everybody's task is marketing. This concept of marketing offering real customer value is what business is all about.
