The diagram shows a central rectangular area representing a document page. This area is divided into sections by dashed lines: a large central rectangle, a smaller rectangle below it, and a small rectangle to the left of the central one. The central area is surrounded by a solid blue border. To the left of the central area is a white rectangular box. To the right of the central area is a vertical column of seven white rectangular boxes. The top and bottom of the central area are also bordered by solid colors (orange and grey respectively).
