During(1) pandemic, people could not go to cinemas or theaters. Now, (2) Finnish company named Finnkino came up with a way for people to still enjoy their time there. In two cinemas in (3) capital city of Helsinki, people can play (4) video games with their friends. Finnkino rents out screens to groups of up to ten people. (5) people need to bring their own consoles, games, and wireless controllers. They pay 280 dollars per group for a session which lasts two and (6) half hours. This is about twice as much as one person pays for a cinema ticket.
