Wedding Day Photos

Last September, my wife and I got married. We were both incredibly _____ (nerve) about the day, of course; but in the end, it wasn't _____ (stress) at all. In fact, it was a really exciting day, and one that we will remember forever. The problem is that although our friend took hundreds of _____ (type) wedding photos of proud parents, _____ (cheer) cousins and crazy aunts and uncles doing _____ (fun) things, we don't know what to do with them. They're all on our computer, you see. But is it _____ (accept) to put our photos on a _____ (person) blog or on a _____ (society) networking site? Or should we print the photos and put them in a _____ (tradition) family album? Personally, I think that sometimes the old ways are best. Wedding photos should be in a wedding album that you can put on a shelf and leave to get old and _____ (dust)! What do you think?
