2 Sales are increasing at the moment.	b) Actions and situations repeated regularly over a long period of time.	past continuous
3 Sales have increased by 5% this year.	c) Actions or situations in progress from the past up to the present.	present simple
4 Sales have been increasing rapidly this year.	d) Temporary actions and situations in progress now.	present continuous
5 Sales increased significantly last year.	e) Actions or activities in progress in the past.	present perfect
6 Sales were increasing all through last year.	f) A past event or situation that is connected to the present.	present perfect continuous

Note: remember that some verbs are not normally used in a continuous form. These include verbs of thinking (doubt, know, understand), the senses (see, appear), feelings (like, want, hope), possession (belong to, contain, have) and other verbs like cost, depend on, mean, need.

B. Complete the email by writing the verbs in brackets into either the present simple, present continuous and present perfect.

Every year around this time we ⁽¹⁾ (interview) candidates for functions across the company. This week I ⁽²⁾ (plan) that process, so I ⁽³⁾ (need) an estimate of staffing needs from every department. In past years we ⁽⁴⁾ (always/be able to) recruit the numbers asked for, but this year will be different. At the moment we ⁽⁵⁾ (operate) in a difficult market, and sales ⁽⁶⁾ (fall) considerably over the last year. This ⁽⁷⁾ (mean) that we will have to reduce our staffing costs, although I ⁽⁸⁾ (hope) it will only be temporary.
