Choose a suitable word from the box to fill in the paragraph

affect	millionaires	afford	refund	however	applications	sale

When asked the question "What would you do with a million dollars?" most people tend to give similar answer: "Quit my job, "Buy my dream house," or "Go travelling." People often think that having a million dollars would make all their dreams come true. A million dollars may not really be that much money. Twenty years ago, it might have been possible to (26) _____ most necessities. (27) _____, things are not so easy today.

In most industrialized countries, prices for everything from food to transport to university fees have steadily increased over the years. Housing prices have risen greatly. The main reason is that the population has increased but there are fewer homes available for (28) _____ or rent. For example, in the U.S, the average price of a new home in 1990 was $149,800, while that of 2010 was $272,900. With increases like that, you can see why many (29) _____ are investing in real estate.

Due to increased demand for housing, higher inflation, and a longer life expectancy, a million dollars may not be enough to live on. Of course, where you live and how long you live will (30) _____how far a million dollars can go. To be able to retire early, travel the world, and build your dream home, you may have to be a millionaire many times over!

B. Reading comprehension. Read a paragraph and choose the best answer A, B, C or D.

Can you imagine what it would be like when working at night? You'd start your day when everyone else was going to bed, and you'd go to bed when everyone else was getting up. Is that really a natural way to live?

These days more and more jobs need to be done at night. Most big hotels offer 24-hour room service and need staff reception and working in the bars. Many companies have 24-hour call centres to deal with emergency enquiries. There are

LIVEWORKSHEETS

24-hour supermarkets, and of course there are the workers for the emergency services such as fire-fighters, the police and hospital workers. However, few people can work well at night. This is partly because we cannot easily change our sleeping habits. Some people can manage on as little as three hours' sleep while others need as many as eleven hours – you're either a 'short sleeper' or a 'long sleeper'. If working at night stops you from getting the amount of sleep you need, you will damage your health.

The best part of the day for everyone is around lunchtime and the worst point is between 2 a.m. and 4 a.m. So, if you're driving home at this time or doing something important at work, things are far more likely to go wrong! Human are used to sleeping at night and being awake during the day, and they'll never be able to do things the other way round. The problem is that today's 24-hour society isn't going to slow down which means that night-workers will remain.
