Instruction: Match the differents type of plot to their correct definition.

VOYAGE & RETURN	RAGS TO RICHES	HERO'S JOURNEY	REBIRTH
OVERCOMING THE MONSTER	TRAGEDY	COMEDY

	This plot is a simple point A to point B and back to point A plot. The protagonist sets off on a journey, only to return to his or her starting point having gained wisdom and experience (and sometimes treasure too).
	The hero of a story must undergo two things: recognition and reversal of a situation. Something has to happen from the outside that inspires the hero in a way that he/she didn't realize before. Then he has to undertake a quest to solve the situation.
	Follows a character's transformation from bad to good. The character will frequently have a tragic past that informs their current negative view of life, however, a series of events will help them see the light.
	The protagonist is downtrodden, impoverished, or otherwise struggling, and through a series of events achieves success. This type of plot often features a happy ending.
	even though your characters have defects, their defects should never wind up being painful or destructive. Comic characters make it through unscathed.
	Otherwise known as the good versus evil plot, this type of story features a protagonist fighting an antagonist.
	In a _____, your main character should undergo a major change of fortune — almost always from good to bad, happy to sad. Tragic characters have to suffer.

LIVEWORKSHEETS

LIVEWORKSHEETS