Read the student paragraph about a morning routine. Notice that the paragraph includes a clear topic sentence, supporting sentences, and a concluding sentence. Use this paragraph as a model when you write a paragraph about one of the topics below.

I have followed the same routine in the morning since I started attending college. First, I exercise every morning after I get up. I run about 5 miles three days a week and swim at the community pool on the other mornings. This exercise makes me feel good and also helps me wake up in the morning. After I get home, I take a shower and get ready for school. While I am getting ready, the coffee is brewing. Next, I have a cup of coffee and eat breakfast while I am reviewing my homework for the day. I have learned that reviewing the work for my upcoming classes helps me focus on my lessons and improves my grades at school. Finally, I get in my car and drive to school. This routine made me a good student. I plan to follow this same routine when I start working because it allows me to do my best work all day.

Now you write one paragraph: Describe how you study English or another subject everyday (your learning routine) (7p)

Passage 1

It is difficult to distinguish between the original mythological and folklore ideas on the rose and the emotional excess surrounding the flower due to the rose's popularity in everyday life. Nonetheless, if we examine the beliefs, we see that the rose is much more than a symbol of romantic love expressed by every little poet and painter. Death is one of the rose's most prominent cultural associations. In fact, Roman wills commonly required that roses should be planted on the tombs of the dead. In Switzerland, cemeteries are still referred to as rose gardens. The Saxons connected the rose with life and believed that when a child passed away, the figure of death may be seen outside the home plucking a rose. Roses have always been a symbol of female attractiveness. Shakespeare uses the rose more than any other flower, frequently using it as a symbol of all that is beautiful and good. For the Arabs, however, the rose symbolized male rather than feminine beauty.
