1 ☐ Polish chef Wojciech Modest Amaro loves Polish food. He opened his restaurant, Atelier Amaro, in Warsaw in 2012. Before that, he had trained for years to be a chef, and his hard work finally paid off. His restaurant received a Michelin Star soon after it opened. That's the world's highest culinary award for a restaurant, and the first in Poland.

2 ☐ Amaro spent many years in other countries training as a chef. He worked with Spanish chef Ferran Adrià, who some call the world's greatest chef. His time abroad allowed him to learn new cooking techniques. Because of that, he gave new life to some Polish dishes that people had almost forgotten.

3 ☐ Nature and freshness are important to Amaro. Before opening his restaurant, he travelled round the Polish countryside looking for the best ingredients for his dishes. He collected delightful traditional recipes from villages all over the country. If you want to try award-winning meals cooked with the best ingredients according to the recipes which families have handed down for hundreds of years, visit Atelier Amaro.
