DEPENDANT PREPOSITIONS VOCABULARY

WITH

AT

TO

FOR

Dependent prepositions are the ones which belong to verbs, adjectives, or nouns. They don't form a new phrase, and they are often not translated into other languages or used differently in them.

So, now with the help of a dictionary, drag the correct preposition in the box to each of the sentences.

TO

WITH

OF

OF

1.	The company was in chaos, and though the managing director was considered capablehandling the crisis, he couldn't.
2.	Mr. Richards wasn't familiar the computer program we were currently using, so he needed to be trained.
3.	Moreover, being late to his online meetings was so typicalhim.
4.	What he understood was that he would never be satisfiedunless he learned to take responsibility once and for all.
5.	The new managing director arrived. She is very efficientrunning the company.
6.	They didn't think she was qualified enoughthe position, but that only made her more determined to prove them wrong.
7.	It seems that Adele is absolutely loyalour organization and will never let us down.
8.	In fact, we think she is superior the previous managers when it comes to responsibility and efficiency.