Would you visit Chernobyl ¹if you had the chance? If you went there today, you ²can find a very different city than the one that existed before. Chernobyl didn't ³become famous until its nuclear power plant exploded in 1986. 14,000 people ⁴used to live in the city, but they all had to leave after the accident. Chernobyl has been empty ⁵since then, although about 500 residents ⁶have recently returned to their homes. It isn't easy ⁷to visit the area, because it is still very dangerous. There is a big fence with a lot of signs warning people ⁸not to go any further. The only way to enter is on an official tour, but that can be quite expensive.
