Once upon time in the big country of Russia, lived a beautiful girl named Vasilisa, who was very pure of heart. Sadly her mother had passed away many years before, so Vasilisa and her loving father lived together, on their own, in a cozy cottage in the woods.

Although they missed her mother terribly. Vasilisa and her father did the best they could to be happy. Then, one day, Vasilisa's father decided that it was time to wed again - believing it would be good for Vasilisa to you have a new mother. This is how Vasilisa's stepmother came to live with them.

Shortly after the wedding, Vasilisa's father, who was a merchant by trade, had to leave home to go on a business trip. So he left his precious daughter in the care of his new wife.

As it turned out, his new wife had a secret: she was very jealous of her stepdaughter. While she had been nice to Vasilisa in front of her new husband, the moment he was gone, she began to treat Vasilisa horribly, she made her do all the chores, gave her barely anything to eat, and made her sleep on the cold floor.
