Kathy: I've got an important job for you Jay.

Jay: Yeah?

Kathy: Mrs. Clarkson's _____ today.

Jay: Mrs. Clarkson of Clarkson Industries?

Kathy: Yes.

Jay: She's coming here?

Kathy: Yes. She's flying to Chicago and she's _____ to see us on the way.

Jay: Wow!

Kathy: I need you _____ at the airport and bring her to the office.

Jay: Great!

Kathy: Her plane _____ at three. She only has a couple of hours between flights.

Jay: Don't worry. When her plane _____, I'll be there waiting.

Kathy: Good.

Jay: Oh no!

Kathy: What?

Jay: I don't have my car with me today. Vicki _____ me _____ to work.

Kathy: Argh! You can use my car.

Jay: Your new Volvo?

Kathy: Yes, but be very careful.

Jay: I will. Thank you, Kathy.

2. Listen to the dialogue between Vicki, Jay Kathy (02:19 – 03:34), and spot rest of the phrasal verbs.

Vicki: Whose car key is this?

Jay: Oh, it's Kathy's.

Vicki: The key to her new Volvo?

Jay: Yes, I'm going to _____ an important customer at the airport.

Vicki: It's got wi-fi and all kinds of gadgets.

Jay: I know.

Vicki: How fast can it go?

Jay: Oh, I have no idea.

Vicki: I'll _____.

Jay: But I have to be at the airport at three.

Vicki: I'll be back in ten minutes. I'll bring you some doughnuts.

Jay: Kathy will kill me if I'm late. Oh, _____ Vicki. Where have you been?

Vicki: Out and about.

Jay: Give me the key.

Kathy: Jay. Why weren't you at the airport?

Jay: I'm _____ now, Kathy.

Kathy: You're too late. Mrs. Clarkson just _____ for her next flight.

Jay: I can be there ten minutes.

Kathy: She's _____ the plane now.

Jay: But it's not my fault. Vicki took your car key and then she _____ Vicki: Jay wanted me to get him some doughnuts. Would you like one?

Kathy: Jay! In my office. Now!
