STUDY BUSINESS IN SINGAPORE

The Singapore Business School (SBS) is located in the heart of Singapore's financial district. We offer a range of high-quality courses aimed at preparing students for graduate school. Between classroom sessions you can explore the city and cultivate business connections. We offer content-based classes, such as finance, economics, and international marketing, as well as classes on preparing graduate school applications, including developing CVs and writing personal statements.

We have helped thousands of students gain entry into graduate programmes around the world. We boast a number of high-profile part-time instructors who are experts in their fields, including Diara Rhodes, chief financial officer of Auto Drive Korea, and Farah Wan, vice president of the Kuala Lumpur Union Lenders. For more information about our impressive faculty and course offerings, or to enroll online, visit our Web site at www.sbs.edu.sg.

What Our Students Are Saying

3 June by Atsushi Koshi

I took a finance course at SBS. The school I am now attending in the United Kingdom had a prerequisite that I had not fulfilled while earning my Bachelor's degree, so the eight-week course was convenient. However, I couldn't afford the high rent in the area, so I had to commute, and the traffic in that area is terrible. I wish SBS offered a dormitory for students at the school. The quality of instruction was superb. My lecturer was Diara Rhodes. Though she tended to rush through lectures, discussing a wide range of topics in a small amount of time, I did learn a lot from the reading and from her descriptions of real-world experiences. The way she solved business problems was a source of inspiration during my graduate school interview, and it is also helping me in my current classes.

Cover letter:

I am very interested in the position of line cook at the Delphine Street Grill. For the past six months, I have been the line cook for a café serving traditional Cajun meals. Since the café has only recently been opened, I am responsible for preparing nearly all menu items. I completed my apprenticeship at the famous Hotel Lenoir, working side-by-side with Celebrity Chef Eugénie Mirone. In addition, as Ted Overbeck (my mentor and instructor at Boudreau Community College) can confirm, I am able to develop creative new recipes. In fact, while at the college, I was awarded the Excellence in Innovation Prize for a Vietnamese-style sandwich recipe I crafted, which is now on the menu at the college's cafeteria.

Dear Ms. Beaumont:

I am writing in regard to Anton Hoang's application for employment. Since Mr. Overbeck is on leave this semester, he asked me to respond in his place. Mr. Hoang, who graduated in the top five of his class, demonstrated exceptional culinary skill and a strong desire to learn. He received a glowing review from Sabine Riou, the renowned chef who supervised his three-month internship. I am confident Mr. Hoang will be a valuable asset to your establishment.

Sincerely,

Liz Flores
