

MATCH EACH WORD WITH THE CORRESPONDING DEFINITION.

A line of reasoning to support a given perspective, idea, action or issue.

The investigation into and study of materials and sources in order to establish facts and reach new conclusions.

A judgement or decision reached.

Break down a global topic into issues and explore the causes and consequences of these issues.

The combination of two or more sources of information to form something new and original that might support an argument.

It is the reason behind something happening.

It is the result or effect of something.

A publication or type of media where specific information can be obtained.

Information originally obtained through the direct efforts of the researcher through surveys and interviews.

Information obtained from published sources on the internet or in books.

Quoting from or referencing a particular author or publication, usually in the main body of the work.

Listing sources of information referred to in a piece of work, usually at the end of the work.

Methods used to gather data and information that will be used in your work to support the points you make.

Information about quantities that can be measured and written down with numbers.

Descriptive data, usually used to find out what people think about a situation or issue.

