Today's online chat is with competitions guru Mia Leung. Join us live from 12:00 EST.

I Mia, you've won over 200 competitions. How?

M It's not that I'm a ⁽¹⁾l ___ luckier than other people, but I do have some strategies for people who want to become a ⁽²⁾l _____ better at winning competitions.

I Tell us more.

M If you enter lots of competitions, you are ⁽³⁾f ___ more likely to win something. And don't forget competitions by local businesses. Sometimes only a few people enter them so your chance of winning is ⁽⁴⁾m ___ higher than in other competitions. You're ⁽⁵⁾n _____ near as likely to win a national competition—especially one for a big prize.

I OK.

M In national competitions, you often have to answer a question in 25 words. The competition judges see hundreds of sentences, so if your one is funny, you have a ⁽⁶⁾s _____ better chance of winning. If you can't think of anything funny, then make your entry rhyme. That's ⁽⁷⁾j _____ as good as a joke because the judges can remember it.

I Any other advice?

M Yes. Sometimes you can enter many times. I once won a vacation trip like that. It's not ⁽⁸⁾n _____ as difficult as you think!

BRING IT TOGETHER

7 Choose the correct options to complete the text.

The long jump competition in the 1991 World Championships in Tokyo was the ⁽¹⁾greater / greatest competition I've ever seen. The thing ⁽²⁾that / what made it special was the rivalry between Carl Lewis and Mike Powell. These athletes were ⁽³⁾slightly / far better than all the others in the competition. No one else could jump ⁽⁴⁾near / nearly as far as them. Lewis jumped an amazing 8.91 meters, but then Powell jumped ⁽⁵⁾slight / slightly further—8.95 meters—to break the world record and win the gold medal. Powell's world record has been unbeaten for over 20 years.

In the past, records were broken all the time. In the 1960s, the long jump record was broken nine times. This was because of improving sports science. The ⁽⁶⁾best/better shape the athletes were in, the better they performed. However, some scientists believe we're now reaching the end of sports records. What they say ⁽⁷⁾it's / is that there's a limit to how fast or far a human being can run or jump, and they think that today's athletes are already at that limit.

This phenomenon is ⁽⁸⁾just / quite as common in women's sports as in men's. In the women's 1500 meters the ⁽⁹⁾faster / fastest time ever recorded is 3:50.46, a record set by China's Qu Yunxia in 1993. The reason ⁽¹⁰⁾why / who Qu's record remains the fastest and Powell's record remains the longest is because that they may be the absolute human maximum for those events.
