INTRODUCTION

The house was bustling with activity. Streamers and balloons adorned the ceilings.

Tantalizing snacks and finger food were being prepared. The aroma from the kitchen was teasing me. It was my sister Eliza's sixteenth birthday. There was an air of exuberance bubbling around, however, I wasn't having any of it. Quite honestly, I was bored to death. Mom and Dad were busy scurrying around putting up decorations while Grandmother was preparing dishes fit for the gods. As for me, I had nothing to do. As my eyes 1. _____ around aimlessly, I rested my 2. _____ on my hand and let out an 3. _____ sigh. "Mom, can I do something to help you?" I muttered. My Mom scratched her chin, deep in thought. "Hmm, we haven't picked up Eliza's cake yet. Why don't I pass you the money and you pick it up?" she suggested. My eyes lit up. Finally, something to do. "Remember George, be back quickly!" Mom warned. Annoyed, I 4. _____ my eyes. My Mom never trusts me with anything just because I am only twelve. "Okay! I will! I will!" I assured her and grabbed the crispy fifty dollar note from her and headed out of the door. How I wished I had taken her warning seriously.

CONFLICT

Everything was going swell. I handed the note, picked up the cake and was heading home. I tapped myself on the shoulder and beamed to myself. Good job! I can be responsible too! Little did I know, I was wrong.

ANTICIPATION

There's a reason why my parents do not entrust me with anything. I get distracted easily. I do not have patience, insight or anything resembling restraint. In the next few moments, I was about to do what I do best - getting distracted.

CHARACTER
DESCRIPTION

As I waltzed through the mall, something caught my attention that transformed my

5. _____ into little hearts. It was a game arcade. 6. _____

gushed out of my mouth like a waterfall. Right at the entrance inviting me was my favourite, 'Robocop' game. The cherry on top? It was empty. My eyebrows almost

7. _____ from my forehead, How could I possibly resist?

PROBLEM

I took a quick glance at my watch. The party was only at 4pm. I have at least two hours. I can play a game or two, or so I thought.

CLIMAX

One game became two games. Two games became sixteen games and before I knew it, three hours flew away. As I was busting villains, my eyes darted to my watch. What I saw 8. _____ my forehead with sweat.

ANTICIPATION

The luminous numbers warned me it was 5.10pm! Oh no! The guests must have arrived. I 9. _____ on my fingernails thinking what to do!

Grabbing the cake box, I ran as fast as lightning, which I admit, was not a very good idea. Before I knew it, I was skidding across the mall's shiny tiles and to make matters worse, I crashed against a wall. As for the cake, It was sent on a flying cruise across the mall before descending on the security guard's head.

PROBLEM INTENSIFIES

A 10. _____ formed above my eyebrows as I realized I've landed myself in hot soup!

CONCLUSION

On my sister's sixteenth birthday, she had streamers, balloons, amazing food but no cake. Naturally, my sister's face sprouted no smiles. Most of her pictures were of her 11. _____ her teeth at me or of 12. _____ blowing out of her ears.

PROBLEM SOLVES

I wouldn't blame her. I was impulsive and I should have been more responsible.

This birthday party meant a lot to her and my impulsive act rained on her parade.

I learned to be more responsible.

LESSON

Like the saying goes, I lived and learnt.
