American Bounty restaurant

This is one of four restaurants at the Culinary Institute of America, a famous cooking school in Hyde Park, New York. All of the chefs and waiters are students, and they are getting graded by their teachers as they serve you. The waiters are very friendly but they are a little slow, probably because they are nervous about making mistakes and getting a bad grade!

The Culinary Institute is on a hill with a picturesque view of the Hudson River. Inside, the restaurant is quiet and has large windows. It's the perfect place to bring a date.

The menu features traditional American recipes, and most of the ingredients arrive daily from nearby farms. The chefs take a lot of care to make each dish look like a work of art. However, the prices are fairly expensive. Expect to pay about $40-50 per person.

If you are in New York's Hudson Valley, the American Bounty is definitely worth a visit.
