I didn't know if I should call (☐ nowhere / ☐ somebody) or if I should go inside. I decided to call the police. I tried to find my cell phone but it wasn't (☐ anything / ☐ anywhere) in my bag, then I remembered it was in the car. When I opened the car's door (☐ somebody / ☐ somewhere) turned a light on in the living room. When I got my cell phone to call the police, it rang. I answered and it was my husband. I said: "I think (☐ nobody / ☐ somebody) is robbing our home!". And he told me: "That's impossible. There isn't (☐ anybody / ☐ anywhere) robbing our home!" and I ask: "How do you know that?" He answered: "Because I'm here in the living room calling you. There is (☐ anything / ☐ nothing) wrong here. By the way, why are you so late?" Well, I didn't answer that question but he had to explain why he had left the door open.
