The Second Conditional

We use the second conditional to talk about unreal situations and to imagine the results. The situation clause begins with if and has a past verb, not because the action is in the past, but because it is unreal. We can use was or were with I, he, she and it. The result clause has could/would + base verb. The two clauses can be used in any order.

Unreal Situation	Imaginary Result
I <input type="text"/> a thousand dollars,	<input type="text"/> buy myself a huge TV.
If you <input type="text"/> it all to charity,	you <input type="text"/> have any left.
<input type="text"/> you had a thousand dollars,	what <input type="text"/> you do?

2 Match the sentence halves.

If I saw an elderly man carrying groceries, ●

● if she wanted to tell me her problems.

I would listen to my friend ●

● if she spoke to more people.

If he ate all that chocolate, ●

● he would feel sick!

She would make a lot of friends ●

● I would help him carry them.

They would make their community better ●

● if they picked up their litter.

3 Combine the two sentences to make second conditional sentences.

1 Unreal Situation: I win the lottery.

Imaginary Result: I help a charity.
