Traveling with parents

Louis Benoit, 18, is a student in Leeds.

Where was your best holiday?

Three years ago, we had a holiday in Dominica, where my dad is from. I'd only been there once before when I was little.

(1) _____. The beaches were amazing, and I loved going into the sea. But the best thing was the night my dad and I made a shelter out of banana leaves (2) _____. We were on the edge of the jungle and all we could see was glow-worms, hundreds and hundreds of them. All you could hear was the crickets, and there were lizards everywhere. It was all magical. Camping out was what my dad did when he was a boy, so it was really special (3) _____.

Do you have a say in where you go?

Most of our holidays aren't nearly so exotic: usually my mum just goes down to the travel agent's (4) _____.

What do you like doing most on holiday?

(5) _____. We have lots of holidays in Scotland, because that's where my mum is from, and we'll walk to somewhere (6) _____, or a look around a castle. When I was a kid, I loved pretending I was a knight. Boat trips are great, too – (7) _____. In Dominica, we went on a pirate boat trip.

What's your favorite means of travel?

Ferries. They're not cramped like cars and planes, (8) _____: it's really exciting, you feel like your holiday really does start there. And then you can walk around on deck and look out for the place you're going to, which is also really exciting.

Any tips for parents on holiday?

Have more stops on long journeys. Parents don't realise that the journey is part of the holiday too, and everyone will be in a better mood for the next part of the trip (9) _____.

Where are you off to next?

To Scotland, staying in a mobile home (10) _____. I still like family holidays, even though I've had trips with my mates too, including one to Holland. It was great, being able to do what we wanted when we wanted.
