

Conditional Sentences

- 1) Look at the examples. Which tenses are used in each pair? Match each example to rule a or b.
1. If wildlife experts ever discover them in people's homes, they take them to a rescue centre. ☐
 2. When the animals are healthy enough, the experts transfer them to a safe area in a national park. ☐
 3. If we protect orangutans now, they will have a future. ☐
 4. They won't have a future if we do nothing. ☐
- a. We use the zero conditional for events or situations that actually happen. We use: if/ when + present simple + present simple.
- b. We use the first conditional to imagine what is likely to happen. We use: If + present simple + will/ won't/ might/ may

2)

- We use the second conditional to talk about something that is unlikely to happen or is imaginary. We use: If + past simple + would

- Which example uses the second conditional? Tick it.

1. If bees disappear completely, we will all suffer. ☐

2. If bees disappeared completely, we would all suffer. ☐

3) Choose the correct verb form to complete the sentences.

- 1. If you'll go/ if you go on holiday with your parents, it'll be fun.
 - 2. If I were you, I will/ would go with my friends.
 - 3. If you would go/ you went to the beach with your parents, you'd be bored.
 - 4. If you'll agree/ you agree, we can visit you on Monday.
 - 5. If I had to move, I will/ would move to the USA.
 - 6. If I have/ I'll have enough money, I'll go shopping with you.
 - 7. I think that if we meet/ we'll meet at 8PM there's enough time before the film starts.
- 