Cody's plan for the school year.

Cody is not (good) ____ student. At the beginning of the school year she thinks that September is (important) _____ for climbing than for studying. She plans to pay attention to (difficult) _____ subjects, such as Maths, later – in November or December. The days will get (short) _____ and she will spend (little) _____ time outdoors. In December she will make New Year Resolutions: she will read (much) _____, she will get (little) _____ time playing computer games, she will get up (early) _____ to do all her homework – she will become a (good) _____ student. In January, the coldest month, it will be (easy) _____ to keep to her (fascinating) _____ plan, but in spring, during (long) _____ days, her heart will be out in the mountains. March, April and May are (bad) _____ than winter months for studying for Cody. Now, in autumn, the whole year is ahead.
