

Correlating Room Numbers and Floors

Directions: Assume you work in a hotel that has three buildings.

The Eisenhower building is three stories high, the Kennedy building is five stories high, and the Johnson building is eight stories high. Guests often get confused about which part of the building they are staying in. In the picture, the dark windows are offices. Answer these guests' questions for them.

1. In which building is room 321? _____

2. In which building is room 100? _____

3. In which building is room 842? _____

4. In which building is room 501?

5. In which building is room 300?

6. In which building is room 205?

7. In which building is room 736? _____

8. In which building is room 800? _____

9. In which building is room 700? _____

10. In which building is room 601? _____

11. In which building is room 222? _____

12. In which building is room 412? _____

