An ideal park
Do you (31) there was a park for young people where you live? Well, in Boulder, Colorado, USA, people your age were asked (32) they would like to see in city parks. Top of the list was WiFi. 'I couldn't do my homework (33) there was a study space with WiFi,' said Kim. They'd also like to see more cafes (34) that they offer a wide range of food options. Young people also wanted places (35) they could create art, such as a graffiti wall. Also important were play spaces on (36) that they were for all ages, not just young children. 'I'd like to see ping-pong tables,' and 'It (37) be fantastic if there was a zip wire,' were some of the comments. They also wanted to listen to music so we showed them a park whereyoung people could connect their own phone to a music system, hang out and dance. 'If (38) our park had one! We'd go there all the time!' Important to this age group is safety, and they asked for lighting in (39) they were in the park after dark. Lastly, water features were popular. 'If we (40) those, we could play with our younger brothers and sisters in them.' said Kelly.
