All about halva

1 _____

The word halva comes from Arabic and means desserts or sweets. And that is what halva is – a sweet dessert. There are two types of halva. One is made from flour and the other from a type of nut butter. The flour type feels and tastes very different to the nut-butter halva. It is more like a wet yellow-brown jelly and the nut-butter one is much drier and is a pale/white colour.

2 _____

The flour-based halva is popular in places like Greece, Turkey, India and Pakistan. Nut-butter halva is found in many more countries, from parts of Eastern Europe (Russia, Romania, Croatia, etc) to the Middle East (Lebanon, Syria, etc) to Africa (especially Egypt).

How to make it nut-butter halva:

3 _____

- saucepan
- thermometer
- cake pan

4 _____

- 700g of honey
- 340g of tahini (nut-butter)
- 1½ cups of almonds (a type of nut)

5 _____

- Heat the honey in a saucepan and let it cook until it reaches a heat of about 115 degrees (check with your thermometer). Don't let it overheat or boil quickly – the honey will burn and go black. Once it is at the right temperature, what you've got is called honey syrup. Let the honey syrup cool for a couple of minutes.
- Meanwhile, warm the tahini to about 50 degrees.
- Add the almonds to the honey syrup. Next add the tahini and stir the mixture.
- Pour the warm mixture into an oiled cake pan and leave it to cool. Once cool, cover the mixture and put it in the fridge for about 36 hours.
- Cut and serve cold.

What's the difference between a pancake and an omelette? Well, OK, they're both cooked the same way – in a frying pan / saucepan / chopping board, but the ingredients are quite different. An omelette is basically just any / some eggs fried / poured / cut in butter. You can add cheese or vegetables to it, but the basic recipe is always the same. Pancakes have more ingredients. First you put some / a few flour in a bowl and add many / some eggs. Then you pour / fry / stir the mixture. Next, you chop / heat / pour in some milk and chop / beat / cut the mixture (called batter) until it's smooth. Then you leave the batter in the bowl for 30 minutes to rest. When the time's up, you can start frying your pancakes.

C. Use of English

1. Choose the correct options (past simple or past continuous) to complete the text.

Pay attention to the key words

I heard / was hearing a story about some kids from Indonesia at school yesterday in geography class. They were winning / won a UN environmental prize for their project in 2013. What was so special? Well, there was a big problem in the sea near where they live in Sumbawa Besar. The coral reefs was/were damaged by fishing and the fishermen also were catching / caught too many fish. The problem was getting worse and worse so the kids from Senior High School Number 1 created an 'eco-garden'. This gives the fishermen a new way to get food and make money (so they don't have to fish all the time).

That was a great idea, wasn't it? It helps the environment – but it also helps the fishermen. In the past, while they were fishing / fished, big waves and bad weather sometimes broke / was breaking their boats up. It was dangerous work ... Now maybe the fishermen are not in danger as often.

While I was listening to the story in class, I had / was having my own idea for an environmental project. I told my best friend Gabriela about it when we walked / were walking home from school. She thought my idea sounded great, so I decided / was deciding to discuss it with Dad. I explained the idea to him while he made / was making dinner. He loved / was loving it too and promised to help. It means a lot of hard work but I'm not afraid of that.

3. Choose the correct options to complete the texts.

I don't make no / any meals at home. It's not because I'm lazy, though. My dad's a chef. He always cooks for us and he makes much / a lot of really nice dishes. Mum has no / any time to cook because she's a doctor and she works long hours. My sister can cook a few / a little things, like omelettes and so on – simple food. Do we eat any / some junk food?

I know nothing / something at all about cooking and that makes me sad. I need somebody / something to teach me. The trouble is nobody / anybody in my family is good at cooking either. My dad doesn't even know how to turn on the microwave and my mum isn't much better. Maybe there's somewhere / anywhere I can go to do some cookery classes. That sounds like a good idea. I need to ask somebody / everybody for information on classes. Hey, maybe I can even learn to cook in the evenings at school.
