C. Reading.

Read about Paul and Cheryl's argument. Select the option that best complete the statement or answer the question.

Paul and Cheryl don't argue very often. But when they do argue, it is usually about housework. Paul works long hours—usually he leaves for work at 7:30 and gets home at 7:30. When he gets home, Paul tends to sit on the sofa, watch a baseball game, and relax. Cheryl works only four days a week, but she also spends several hours a day doing housework and she takes care of their two sons when they get home from school. Cheryl wants Paul to help with the housework or put the kids to bed when he gets home. Paul gets angry because he needs time to relax after working 12 hours.

16. Why does Paul and Cheryl argue?
