This is the Bedu family. They live in the Sahara Desert. They have a long history and strong traditions. They are nomads. This means that they live in tents and travel from place to place, looking for water and food for their family and animals. They don't stay in one place. They live in the desert during the rainy winter season and move to a village during the dry summer months.

My name is Didi. I live in the Sahara Desert. Life in the desert is difficult. My day begins early in the morning. I milk my goats and take them to drink water to a well and eat bushes. At midday, I bring them back to the village. I eat, make some tea and rest.

My name is Shamika. I live in the Sahara Desert. My day begins when the sun comes out. I milk sheep and prepare butter and cheese for my family. At midday, I cook lunch and eat with my children.
