Grammar: Past Perfect

When she counted the Pellets at the end of the day, she had used nine of them

If you have two events that happened in the past, the past perfect is used to show that one event happened earlier in the past than the other event.

So, in the sentence above, the events happened in this order:

- 1 Kailani used some Pellets.
- 2 Kailani counted the Pellets.

We know that she used some Pellets before counting them because the sentence is 'she had used'. 'Had used' is past perfect.

The past perfect is formed with had + past participle and it is generally used when the past simple is used in the same sentence.

Look at these sentences and say which event happened first.

- By the time the sun went down, she had taken seven of them.
- Her voice came out in a dry whisper. It was the only thing she had heard in four days.

The past perfect

Rewrite these sentences so you have one sentence which uses the past perfect. There is an example at the beginning.

0 She lost her wallet. I met her at the station.

When / met her at the train station, she had lost her wallet.

1 He ate dinner. It was only four o'clock in the afternoon.

2 She had three children. She was twenty-five.

3 Our grandmother died. We arrived at the hospital.

4 I slept for four hours. I woke up at midnight.
