

BODY ADDERTINES

NAME:
Teacher's comments:

PART 2

ADJECTIVES FOR MUSCULAR PEOPLE

BURLY

BROAD

Strong, large and heavy. Not muscular but heavy built. Usually used for men

Someone with lots of muscles.
Usually used for men

A wide person. Used both for men and women.

Adverbs	Adjectives	Tip!
enormously	beefy	Simile - as fat as a pig.
ridiculously	broad	Metaphor - a fat pig
unbelievably	burly	Know the difference!

Mrs. Trunchbull was no ordinary head mistress. She was a force to reckon with. Standing nearly at 2 metres tall, she was a walking

Not only was she tall, she was METAPHOR
ADVERB	too! Her back was broader time she walked past, she would block the light from the sun. She was that	ginormous. She probably was as heavy as
SIMILE Whenever she saw a child misb	elly, we felt of her. EMOTIONAL ADJECTIVE Dehave,
WHITE IS NOT THE ROLL OF THE PARTY OF THE PA	Red Room!" she would
The power of her voice alone w	ould turn us into wobbly jellies.
We never knew where the Red	Room was but we knew only knew this. Once a child goes to the Red Room, s	she or he never ever comes back!

Adverbs	Adjectives	Tip!
enormously	beefy	Simile - as fat as a pig.
ridiculously	broad	Metaphor - a fat pig
unbelievably	burly	Know the difference!

I'd use a simile to describe that hairy moustache! I might compare it to an animal.

It's your turn. Describe strong Mr. Stone

Adverbs	Adjectives	Tip!
enormously	beefy	Simile - as fat as a pig.
ridiculously	broad	Metaphor - a fat pig
unbelievably	burly	Know the difference!

I'd use a simile to describe those muscles. Perhaps, chiseled like a stone sculpture. Greek statue?

Spelling test

1. I was	with my brother
for leaving the dirty dishes in the sink
2. I felt	when I was announced as the winner.
3. Sue felt	thinking of her old school mates.
4. Radha is	of doctors.
5. Shabana was feeling	after a iumbo meal fit for the gods.

