

A sailor went to sea

Watch the vídeo:

Put the animals in order, as they appear in the song:

1	2	3	4	5	6

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million, from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1999. The public sector has also become an important employer of people with disabilities. In 1999, 1.2 million people with disabilities were employed in the public sector, compared with 0.8 million in 1980 (Department of Social Security 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to ensure that people with disabilities are able to participate fully in society. This has led to a number of initiatives aimed at improving the lives of people with disabilities. One of the most important of these is the Disability Discrimination Act (1995), which aims to ensure that people with disabilities are not discriminated against in the workplace, in education, and in the provision of goods and services.

The Disability Discrimination Act (1995) is a landmark piece of legislation in the UK. It aims to ensure that people with disabilities are not discriminated against in the workplace, in education, and in the provision of goods and services. The Act covers a wide range of areas, including employment, education, and the provision of goods and services. It also sets out the duties of employers, educational institutions, and service providers to ensure that people with disabilities are able to participate fully in society.

The Act has led to a number of initiatives aimed at improving the lives of people with disabilities. One of the most important of these is the Disability Discrimination Act (1995), which aims to ensure that people with disabilities are not discriminated against in the workplace, in education, and in the provision of goods and services. The Act covers a wide range of areas, including employment, education, and the provision of goods and services.

The Act has led to a number of initiatives aimed at improving the lives of people with disabilities. One of the most important of these is the Disability Discrimination Act (1995), which aims to ensure that people with disabilities are not discriminated against in the workplace, in education, and in the provision of goods and services. The Act covers a wide range of areas, including employment, education, and the provision of goods and services.

The Act has led to a number of initiatives aimed at improving the lives of people with disabilities. One of the most important of these is the Disability Discrimination Act (1995), which aims to ensure that people with disabilities are not discriminated against in the workplace, in education, and in the provision of goods and services. The Act covers a wide range of areas, including employment, education, and the provision of goods and services.

The Act has led to a number of initiatives aimed at improving the lives of people with disabilities. One of the most important of these is the Disability Discrimination Act (1995), which aims to ensure that people with disabilities are not discriminated against in the workplace, in education, and in the provision of goods and services. The Act covers a wide range of areas, including employment, education, and the provision of goods and services.

The Act has led to a number of initiatives aimed at improving the lives of people with disabilities. One of the most important of these is the Disability Discrimination Act (1995), which aims to ensure that people with disabilities are not discriminated against in the workplace, in education, and in the provision of goods and services. The Act covers a wide range of areas, including employment, education, and the provision of goods and services.

The Act has led to a number of initiatives aimed at improving the lives of people with disabilities. One of the most important of these is the Disability Discrimination Act (1995), which aims to ensure that people with disabilities are not discriminated against in the workplace, in education, and in the provision of goods and services. The Act covers a wide range of areas, including employment, education, and the provision of goods and services.