

The stone cutter play

Complete the playscript by selecting the correct part and turning the poem into a play.

The stone cutter: I am just a poor stone cutter chipped at a rock. I rather be a rich man instead.

And he became a rich man.

Rich man: I am a rich man. _____.

I blow clouds away across the sky.

I have gold and beautiful clothes.

Then the emperor rode past.

Rich man: I am just a rich man. I rather be the emperor instead.

And he became the emperor.

The emperor: I am the emperor. _____.

My servants wear blue and gold clothes.

I am huge and hard.

Then the sun came out.

The emperor: I am just the emperor. I rather be the sun instead.

And he became the sun.

The sun: I am the sun. _____.

I am grander and more powerful than any emperor.

My hammer goes TACK and my chisel goes TOCK.

Then a big cloud passed.

The sun: I am just the sun. I'd rather be a cloud instead.

And he became a cloud.

The cloud: I am a cloud. _____.

I am just a poor stone cutter.

I can block out all the sun's light.

Then a wild wind blew the cloud.

The cloud: I am just a cloud. I'd rather be the wind instead.

And he became the wind.

The wind: I am the wind. _____.

I blow clouds away across the sky.

My servants wear blue and gold clothes.

The wind blew until smacked at a huge rock.

The wind: I am just the wind. I'd rather be a rock instead.

And he became a rock.

The rock: I am a rock. _____.

I have gold and beautiful clothes.

I am huge and hard.

Then the rock felt another poor stone cutter chipping at his side.

The rock: I am just a rock. I'd rather be a poor stone cutter once again.

And he became a poor stone cutter once again.

The stone cutter: I am a poor stone cutter chipped at a rock. My hammer goes TACK and my chisel goes TOCK.

The End

Rewrite the playscript writing the missing parts.

The stone cutter play

The stone cutter: I am just a poor stone cutter chipped at a rock. I rather be a rich man instead.

And he became a rich man.

Rich man: I am a rich man. _____.

Then the emperor rode past.

Rich man: I am just a rich man. I rather be the emperor instead.

And he became the emperor.

The emperor: I am the emperor. _____.

Then the sun came out.

The emperor: I am just the emperor. I rather be the sun instead.

And he became the sun.

The sun: I am the sun. _____.

Then a big cloud passed.

The sun: I am just the sun. I'd rather be a cloud instead.

And he became a cloud.

The cloud: I am a cloud. _____.

Then a wild wind blew the cloud.

The cloud: I am just a cloud. I'd rather be the wind instead.

And he became the wind.

The wind: I am the wind. _____

The wind blew until smacked at a huge rock.

The wind: I am just the wind. I'd rather be a rock instead.

And he became a rock.

The rock: I am a rock. _____.

Then the rock felt another poor stone cutter chipping at his side.

The rock: I am just a rock. I'd rather be a poor stone cutter once again.

And he became a poor stone cutter once again.

The stone cutter: I am a poor stone cutter chipped at a rock. My hammer goes TACK and my chisel goes TOCK.

The End