Republic Day

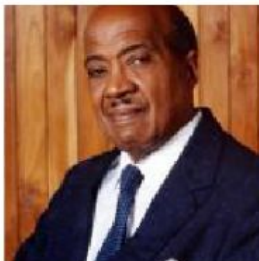

Republic Day is celebrated on the 24th of September every year. This the day that Trinidad and Tobago became a republic, meaning that we are now able to make our own laws. We also got a president and a parliament. On republic day the president gives a speech to say what the country has done since it became a republic. He or she would talk about the countries major achievements and all the new laws and systems that have been made. There is also no school or work on this day as it is a public holiday.
