

Fun at Sweet Berry Farms

The beginning of May was just around the corner and Sophie couldn't wait. It was one of her favorite times of years. She loved November and December so she could spend the holidays with her family. Summer was great too.

Spending time at the pool and playing outside until it got dark was a lot of fun. For Sophie though, the beginning of May meant strawberry picking time. She kept checking online for her favorite strawberry farm to announce the day they would open for picking. Finally, on May 7th, it was time! That morning, she showed her mom the announcement on the farm's website.

Luckily they had gotten up early and were ready to go just after breakfast.

After arriving at the farm, Sophie and her mom got two large baskets and began picking. The sun was shining and it was warm on their backs. After about an hour, Sophie and her mom had filled their baskets with red, ripe berries. They paid for their strawberries and then headed into the farm store. Inside there were lots of goodies, all made from strawberries. Sophie and her mom picked out a strawberry pie for Sophie's dad and strawberry cupcakes for her brothers. Then Sophie and her mom each ordered a cone of sweet, homemade strawberry ice cream. They sat together on a picnic table and enjoyed their ice cream.

On the way home, Sophie thanked her mom for a great morning. As they rode home, they talked about all the delicious things they would make with the strawberries. Sophie planned to make smoothies and jam. Her mom had a new recipe for a strawberry cake she wanted to try. In a week or two, all the strawberries would be gone and she and her mom could plan another fun day to pick strawberries before the season was over.
