

The first and best-known use of the _____

Is with the auxiliary _____

You use it for promises, facts and predictions,

Intentions that you're sure you'll fulfill

Like if I say : The sun _____ rise in the morning

And the forecast says that it _____ snow

I promise I _____ be your teacher

You will learn a lot from me

The Song of the _____

Helps in a situation

When it's not _____ nor _____

But all the time to come

The second way of using the _____

Is with the phrase 'to be _____ to'

You use it when you talk about an intention

Like: "I'm _____ to explain it to you."

And the third is with the present _____ tense

that you use to talk about arrangements

Like: "I'm meeting you at the weekend."

Now I'm pretty sure you you will _____

The Song of the _____

Helps in a situation

When it's not _____ nor _____

But all the time to come

All the time to come
