I had a terrible day last week. I was going back home when I lost my keys. I was taking the bus after school and my keys fell from my backpack. I didn't notice that until I arrived home. There was nobody at home; so, I waited for hours outside.

I sat down on my porch to wait for my family. I was reading some posts on Instagram on my phone when it suddenly started to rain. I tried to call my mom and my sister but they didn't pick up.

Then, I received a call from Ethan, my best friend. Fortunately, he invited me to play some video games. I took a taxi to get to his place; but the car got a flat tire. It took me one hour to finally get to Ethan's house.

I spent four hours in the streets but in the end I had fun with my friend. We played Fortnite until 2 am.
