5 Underline the correct form of the verb.

Well, I (1) was standing / had stood in line at the checkout in the grocery store the other day when I overheard a really interesting conversation. One woman (2) was telling / had told another woman about her boyfriend. She (3) was going / had gone on and on about how wonderful he was. How he (4) was always taking / had always taken care of her, cooking and cleaning and buying romantic gifts. I (5) was beginning / have been beginning to feel jealous, when suddenly the woman's cell phone rang. "Yes, honey," she answered. "No honey, of course, honey, right away. Yes, I (6) 've bought / 'd been buying some beer ... yes, I (7) 've remembered / 'm remembering your sports magazine ... no, of course I don't mind if Ben and Dan come over ... Yes, yes, I (8) 'll be getting / 'll have got the food ready while you (9) 're watching / 've watched soccer ... No, no, don't worry, you take it easy." "As always," she added under her breath as she hung up. Of course, everyone else (10) had been listening / had listened too, and at that point we all looked away, desperately trying to look like we (11) hadn't heard / weren't hearing a word and (12) were just waiting / had just waited to pay for our groceries.
