

Part 4: The election process

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=2eXCG-hlaql> 0'34 → the end

1) Step 1: Primaries and Caucuses

The two main parties in the US are [red box] and [red box]

In caucuses, party members [red box], [red box] and [red box] for who they think would be the best party candidate.

In primaries, party members vote in a state election for the candidate they want to represent them in the [red box].

2) Step 2: National Conventions and General Election

After the primaries and caucuses, each major party, [red box] and [red box]

[red box], holds a national convention to select a Presidential [red box]

The party's Presidential nominee announces his or her choice for Vice President. The Presidential candidates campaign throughout the country to win the support of the general [red box]

On Election Day, people in every state [red box] their vote.

3) Step 3: The Electoral College

When people cast their vote, they are actually voting for a group of people called [red box]

The number of electors each state gets is [red box] to its total numbers of [red box]

[red box] and [red box] in Congress. A total of [red box]

electors from the Electoral College.

Each elector casts one vote following the general election. The candidate who gets [red box] votes or more [red box]. The newly elected President and Vice President are then inaugurated on [red box]

